Lean Six Sigma and Environmental Responsibility

They are closer to business as usual than you think!

Hundreds of corporations worldwide use a methodology that can be realistically broadened to justify environmental responsibility. It's called "Lean Six Sigma", a proven methodology for defining problems, reducing waste, systematically improving outputs and tracking results. Join us to learn more about this exciting topic at our next Sustainability Luncheon

KEYNOTE SPEAKER:

Mike Fedotowsky, co-founder of The 5 Disciplines, Inc :

Mike has over 25 years of consulting experience helping organizations improvement quality and productivity. Prior to founding The 5 Disciplines, Inc., Mike played an integral part in helping Florida Power & Light become the first company outside Japan to win the coveted Deming Prize.
